

What They Said

At a conference on fashion the other day, in one of the greatest fashion centers of the world there were discussed the various merits of the different makes of several lines of women's apparel, and those present were asked to say what they judged to be best.

American Lady Corsets

were mentioned the most frequently.

We always have an American Lady Corset. If not, why not try them and see for yourself. Beautiful wire models in our line, priced from $1.00 to $10.00.

CANTATA PLEASES A THE DRAMATIC CLUB BIG AUDIENCE PRESENTS PLAY

Unique Success Is First Presentation of the Department of Music: "Lay of the Bell" Rendered by Students.

A unique part of the University commencement exercises was the presentation of the cantata, "The Lay of the Bell" by the University Glee club. This is the initial year of the Department of Music and already the work that has been accomplished within this short space of time must be high tribute to the ability of Miss Helena Eryptides, who has conducted the department this year.

The cantata, which was given last night at the Elks' opera house, is adapted from Schiller's poem, "Die Glocke," the music by Andreas Romberg, in a series of solos, duets and choruses the story of the bell is dramatically told.

Robert T. Stewell sang the part of the master, who carries the heaviest part of solos. Mr. Stewell, although this is his first year of vocal training, sang in exceptionally good voice, and with a sweetness of tone and a carrying power that speaks well for the possibilities of the Department of Music. Charles Andrews, who was the only person on the program not of the University, was at his best and his pleasing voice blended well with the voices of the students.

Special mention must be made of the solo and quartet singing of Miss Pickard and Miss Koon, as well as the Misses Howell and McCollum. These young ladies sang splendidly individually, and blended together their voices were beautifully young and fresh.

Misses Seder, Shimer and Weber and Arens also did some exceptional work as solists.

Miss Helena Eryptides herself does not often sing in public, singing several songs that were a rare treat to those that heard her. She has a wonderfully sweet and clear voice and her remarkable tone placement and control show that she is indeed an artist of great ability.

A large audience greeted the singer and showed their appreciation by their constant attention and genuine applause. This production was a distinct triumph and a clear demonstration of the excellent work that the University is doing in musical instruction, which is so essential a part of the well-rounded education.

The program follows:

NEW FLY CATCHER IS A WINNER

Charles Conroy Has Trap Which Corrals Pestiferous Insects by Thousands Before They Get Into House.

Charles Conroy of the Belmont is demonstrating these days that it is no longer necessary to wait months to come into your house to catch flies. You can do this now by means of his new invention, the "Fly Catcher," which consists of a glass jar containing the sulphur, and the sulphur when heated, gives off a strong fuming gas that drives away flies, mosquitoes, ants, bees, wasps, hornets, and many other insects.

This trap is a cylindrical screen case. By means of a small device, the flies are caught into an olive green color inside the cage. When this trap is full, it is taken to the market and sold for 10 cents. The cost of the trap is 50 cents. They know that the trap looks cheap with a small business load of flies follows. The trap especially must be enthusiastic among those who noted its effectiveness, and Mr. Conroy says he is now ready for it. He has received a number of orders for the traps.

SMALL BOY TEAL FLOWER LADEN BOAT

Lads Turn Vandals and Take Ship
Released by Veterans in Waters of Rio Grande.

Apparatus consisting of the snare of their offense, several small boys turned vandals this morning and stole the "Teal" sail boat which was turned over to the waters of the Rio Grande in honor of the soldiers who lost their lives in the dead during the Civil War. The boat is a pretty thing, designed and built to float a considerable distance, was homed with appropriate inscriptions by members of G. W. Scott post, G. A. H. Scott had not proceeded far when small boats, hidden in the bushes beyond the first bend in the river, sent the crew of the "Teal" ashore, cut the lines and took the boat.

The boys, who are sons of the soldiers who lost their lives in the dead during the Civil War, the boat is a pretty thing, designed and built to float a considerable distance, was homed with appropriate inscriptions by members of G. W. Scott post, G. A. H. Scott had not proceeded far when small boats, hidden in the bushes beyond the first bend in the river, sent the crew of the "Teal" ashore, cut the lines and took the boat. The vandals, standing on the bridge, saw the boat and had been a few years younger, would have given chase and caught the youngsters. A test for their act of vandalism. The names of the boys who stole the boat are known and it is not unlikely they will be prosecuted. On the former decoration days, small boats have stolen boats launched in memory of the soldiers and sailors who died in the water, and the members of G. A. H. Scott post declare they will take immediate steps to see that the perpetrators of the said malfeasance are dealt with summarily.

The parts have been chosen with especial fitness of the several actors. Miss Hazel Cox has a variety and charm that is well adapted to the part of leading lady. She has developed in the rehearsals a new depth and feeling which she has always attained in her former impersonations, and her clever acting will show to its best advantage tonight.

Romantic clothing was chosen especially for its graceful stage presence. He will take the leading man's part and no doubt will excel in his former efforts in this role. W. H. Arnes, who plays Mattie Standish, has the commanding presence and deep voice suited to the presentation of this important role.

Robert Sestell, who will play the part of the villain, was created a character that will be long remembered by matinees and his wicked eye and dark plotting will be a feature of the play.

The versatile Charles B. Lemire will play the part of an amorous French boy. He will appear to be deeply in love with the matinée. Mattie. That the part of Mattie will be played by Lemire's own sister will not detract from the humor of the situation in the boat, and it is promised that the delicate comedy of these two parts are in themselves worth seeing. Miss Marie Parrish and Grace Cassatt will also be seen at their greatest advantage, their characterization of minor parts being adjudged highly artistic.

A full house is already assured, as the advance sale has been the greatest that has ever been known for the opening of a musical play. The great success of the performance, which it will undoubtedly attain, is due in no small measure to the untiring efforts of Miss Mac Ross, who has spent considerable time and trouble in the coaching of the players. The success of the finances of the production are due to the efforts of the Holt managers, and no less to Charles Smith, property man, Charles Weber ticket agent. A full house presages a record.

TOBACCO TRUST

number of stock brokers with foreign connections kept their offices open to day to enable customers to trade in the wake of yesterday's extreme cotton demand ordering the dissolution of the tobacco trust.

Cotton department today indicated that the decision against the American Tobacco company was expected. The strength of tobacco stocks was in front of the early market. Many brokers remained at their places most of the night, waiting orders for the opening of the London market. A corporation model is one of the best known in the result of yesterday's decision. Traders say they have long been looking for a pattern after which to model their big combination and they express satisfaction over the features of the supreme court decision while others fear the reorganization of the tobacco corporation along legal lines, under supervision of the lower court.
